

COMPREHENSIVE DRUG PENALTY ACT OF 1984

AUGUST 9, 1984.—Ordered to be printed

Mr. ROSTENKOWSKI, from the Committee on Ways and Means, submitted the following

REPORT

[To accompany H.R. 4901 which on February 22, 1984, was referred jointly to the Committee on the Judiciary, the Committee on Energy and Commerce and the Committee on Ways and Means]

[Including cost estimate of the Congressional Budget Office]

The Committee on Ways and Means to whom was referred the bill (H.R. 4901) to amend the Controlled Substances Act, the Controlled Substances Import and Export Act, and the Tariff Act of 1930 to improve forfeiture provisions and strengthen penalties for controlled substances offenses, and for other purposes, having considered the same, report favorably thereon with an amendment and recommend that the bill as amended do pass.

The amendment strikes out all after the enacting clause of the bill and inserts a new text which appears in italic type in the reported bill.

PURPOSES AND SUMMARY

H.R. 4901, as amended and ordered reported by the Committee on Ways and Means, consists of two titles. Title I, which is entitled the "Comprehensive Drug Penalty Act of 1984," is under the jurisdiction of the Committee on the Judiciary and was favorably reported by that Committee on June 19, 1984. It makes various amendments to the Controlled Substances Act and the Controlled Substances Import and Export Act, including increasing the penalties for convictions in all felony drug trafficking cases and creating a strong criminal forfeiture statute.

Title II, which is under the jurisdiction of the Committee on Ways and Means, amends the Tariff Act of 1930 to provide for a more streamlined approach for handling civil forfeitures and to expand the arrest authority of customs officers. The bill would allow the use of administrative rather than judicial forfeiture proceedings in many more cases by increasing the current ceiling from $10,000 to $100,000 for most articles and by removing the ceiling entirely for prohibited merchandise and conveyances which are used to import, export, transport, or store any controlled substance. The bill also would raise the amount of the bond which is required to be posted in order to require a judicial forfeiture from $250 to the lesser of $2,500 or 10 percent of the value of the property. Additionally, the bill would establish the Customs Forfeiture Fund to help defray the escalating costs associated with forfeiture procedures and provide the authority for Customs to transfer seized or forfeited property to State or local law enforcement agencies. Finally, the bill would increase the compensation level which can be paid to informers from $50,000 to $250,000.

Under current law, judicial forfeiture proceedings must be used in all cases where the seized property exceeds $10,000, even though most cases are uncontested. This results in significant delays of up to two years, during which time the seized property frequently deteriorates, resulting in a substantial decrease in value. Further, since Customs may not currently use the net proceeds of one seizure to offset the unrecouped costs of another seizure, such losses must be covered by their regular appropriations. Because it is difficult to budget for these unpredictable expenditures, monies have to be diverted from other important administrative or enforcement functions.

The changes provided for in Title II should result in substantial cost savings to the U.S. Government, without adversely affecting the property rights of owners wishing to contest the forfeiture of their property.

In order to facilitate floor action, the Committee adopted a substitute amendment incorporating the language of the bill as reported by the Committee on the Judiciary with several minor technical corrections.

The Committee also adopted an amendment to section 207 to increase from $500 to $1,000 the value of an article which Customs may destroy or otherwise dispose of if the expense of keeping the article is disproportionate to the value thereof and an amendment to section 208 deleting paragraph (d) in order to remove a duplication with respect to how the Customs Forfeiture Fund would be funded. The Committee adopted several amendments to section 209 of the bill to clarify that the Customs Forfeiture Fund is only available for the payment of specified expenditures "with respect to seizures and forfeitures by the United States Customs Service under any law enforced or administered by it" and for the purchase of evidence relating to the smuggling of controlled substances and to violations of currency and foreign transaction reporting requirements if there is a substantial probability that a violation of those requirements is related to the smuggling of controlled substances. Finally, the Committee amended section 209 to restrict the amount authorized to be appropriated from the fund to $10 million per fiscal year.

During the 97th Congress, a similar version of this bill passed the House and Senate as part of an omnibus crime package. The President, however, primarily on an issue unrelated to these provisions, decided to veto the bill.

COMMITTEE ACTION

The Subcommittee on Trade received testimony from the U.S. Customs Service on a predecessor bill, H.R. 3299, during its hearing on miscellaneous tariff bills on November 15, 1983.

On May 10, the Subcommittee on Trade by voice vote ordered H.R. 4901 reported favorably to the full Committee with amendments.

On August 1, the Committee on Ways and Means ordered H.R. 4901 favorably reported by voice vote with amendments.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF TITLE II, JUSTIFICATION, AND COMPARISON WITH PRESENT LAW

Section 201

Section 201 amends sections 602, 605, 606, and 607 of the Tariff Act of 1930 (the Tariff Act) to expressly include "aircraft" in the coverage of those sections. Presently, aircraft are covered by these sections implicitly pursuant to 49 U.S.C. 1509 and part 6 of title 19 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

Section 202

Section 202 amends section 607 of the Tariff Act by raising the value of property which can be administratively forfeited to $100,000 except in the case of prohibited merchandise and conveyances used to import, export, or otherwise transport controlled substances, for which there would be no limit. Increased enforcement activities have led to a dramatic rise in the number of conveyances seized by Customs during the last few years, many of which were used to smuggle large quantities of controlled substances.

Under present law, all property over $10,000 must be judicially forfeited, even if the forfeiture is uncontested as is frequently the case. This has resulted in crowded Federal court dockets and delays in forfeiture proceedings of 12 to 18 months are not uncommon. During this period, the Government must pay for the conveyances' storage and maintenance and the conveyances generally deteriorate tremendously in value. Keeping a large number of seizures also strains Customs resources making it difficult to properly maintain the property under seizure and to prevent vandalism. Increasing the administrative forfeiture limit will reduce costs by speeding up forfeitures. The bill retains the provision of law permitting interested parties desiring to contest forfeitures to obtain court review if they are willing to post a claim and cost bond.

This statutory change has been recommended by the General Accounting Office in its report, "Better Care and Disposal of Seized Cars, Boats and Planes Should Save Money and Benefit Law Enforcement" (GAO-PLRD-83-94, July 15, 1983, at page vi).

Section 203

Section 203 amends section 608 of the Tariff Act to specifically include "aircraft" and to increase the amount of bond which is to be filed by a party wishing to contest the forfeiture of property subject to the provisions of section 607 (i.e., property valued at $100,000 or less, prohibited merchandise or conveyances of illicit drugs) in a judicial proceeding. The current bond requirement of $250 has not changed since 1844, when administrative forfeiture was limited to property valued at $100 or less. This amount is clearly too low to discourage the filing of frivolous suits and does not reflect the substantial costs to the Customs Service in pursuing a judicial forfeiture. As amended by section 203, the bond would be set at the lesser of $2,500 or 10 percent of the value of the property, but not less than $250. Current Customs procedures, which excuse individuals from the application of the bond requirements if financial need is established, would be maintained.

Section 204

Section 204 amends section 609 of the Tariff Act to make explicit reference to "aircraft" and to provide for the deposit of the proceeds of the sale of property forfeited under the customs law into the Customs Forfeiture Fund established in section 209.

Section 205

Section 205 amends section 610 of the Tariff Act to conform to the amendments discussed above regarding section 607. Consistent with current law, section 610 requires a judicial forfeiture for all property not governed by section 607. Thus, as amended by section 202, property valued in excess of $100,000 which is neither a prohibited import nor a conveyance used to transport controlled substances would be subject to judicial forfeiture regardless of whether the forfeiture is contested.

Section 206

Section 206 amends section 611 of the Tariff Act to make explicit reference to "aircraft."

Section 207

Section 207 amends section 612 of the Tariff Act (which permits, in certain circumstances, the summary sale of a wasting asset) to conform with the amendment to section 607 discussed above in relation to section 202 of the bill. It further amends section 612 to make explicit reference to "aircraft" and to add a new subsection (b) which would allow Customs to destroy or otherwise dispose of property valued at less than $1,000 if the expense of keeping such property is disproportionate to the value thereof. This provision, which was added by the Committee on the Judiciary and expanded by the Committee on Ways and Means by increasing the value from $500 to $1,000, should result in substantial savings in Customs' storage and related costs for junk-type articles which are difficult to sell. The Customs Forfeiture Fund would be subject to claims of parties with an interest in this property.

Section 208

Section 208 makes conforming amendments to section 613 of the Tariff Act, including making explicit reference to "aircraft."

Section 209

Section 209 amends the Tariff Act by creating a new section 613A establishing a Customs Forfeiture Fund in the U.S. Treasury during the period from date of enactment until September 30, 1987. During this period, net proceeds from Customs' forfeitures (after the payment of expenses directly related to such forfeitures) will be deposited in the fund and be available to the Customs Service, through the appropriations process, to pay designated expenses "with respect to seizures and forfeitures by Customs under any law enforced or administered by it" and for Customs' purchases of evidence of violations "smuggling of controlled substances and of violations of the currency and foreign transaction reporting requirements of chapter 53, title 31, U.S. Code if there is a substantial probability that the violation of these requirements are related to the smuggling of controlled substances." [Emphasis added.] The underscored language was added by the Committee on Ways and Means to restrict Customs expenditures out of the fund to those enumerated expenditures clearly associated with seizure, forfeiture, or drug enforcement.

Several Members of the Committee expressed concern that without such restrictions, the Customs Service could easily circumvent the established budget process and authorization procedures thereby providing funds for other purposes. In addition to the purchase of evidence described above, the fund would be available for the payment of the following expenditures relating to seizures and forfeitures:

- (1) all proper expenses of the seizure or the proceedings of forfeiture and sale (not otherwise recovered under section 613(a)), including, but not limited to, expenses of inventory, security, maintaining the custody of the property, advertising and sale, and if condemned by the court and a bond for such costs was not given, the costs as taxed by the court;
- (2) payment of awards of compensation to informers under section 619 of the Tariff Act;
- (3) payment for satisfaction of—
 - (a) liens for freight, charges and contributions in general average, notice of which has been filed with the appropriate customs officer according to law; and
 - (b) other liens against forfeited property;
- (4) payments of amounts authorized by law with respect to remission and mitigation;
- (5) payment for equipping for law enforcement functions of forfeited vessels, vehicles, and aircraft retained as provided by law for official use by the U.S. Customs Service; and
- (6) payments for property disposed of under the new section 612(b) of this bill.

The language in item (1) above reflects a Committee amendment to the bill as introduced to more precisely describe the applicable expenses of seizure and forfeiture and to more closely conform to the language currently set forth in section 613(a)(1) of the Tariff Act. Further, under an amendment adopted by the Committee, the total amount authorized to be appropriated from the fund for the expenditures described above would be $10 million in each fiscal year.

At the end of each of the first three fiscal years, any amount in the fund in excess of $10 million would be deposited in the general Treasury fund and on September 30, 1987, the fund would terminate and all proceeds would be deposited in the general fund. This fund has been established for a temporary period in order to give the Congress the opportunity to review its operation and effectiveness. It is expected that, based upon the findings of this review process, the Congress will make a decision whether to reauthorize the fund after September 30, 1987, allow it to terminate, or find another method for funding seizure and forfeiture expenditures.

Provision is also made for the reimbursement from the fund for expenses incurred by the Coast Guard in connection with a seizure and for the investment of proceeds from the fund which are not currently needed. Finally, within four months after the end of each fiscal year, Customs is required to submit to the Congress a report on receipts and disbursements with respect to the fund for such year. Because the Committee has oversight responsibility over the Customs Service, including its budget authorization, it has a strong interest in seeing that the Customs Forfeiture Fund is operated in a manner consistent with its established purpose. Therefore, the Commission would expect the Customs Service to submit copies of the report directly to the Committee for study.

The Committee believes that the establishment of the Customs Forfeiture Fund, which was recommended by the GAO study referred to earlier, should result in substantial budget savings and provide greater efficiency in the handling of seized and forfeited property. Currently, the Customs Service must cover losses associated with forfeitures under their regular appropriations. Since it is very difficult to budget for these unpredictable expenditures, monies may have to be diverted from other important administrative or enforcement functions.

Under present law, the costs in handling each seizure are deducted from the proceeds of that seizure, if any. The resulting "net proceeds" are then transferred to the General Fund in the Treasury. But if the proceeds do not exceed the expenses, the agency must cover the expenses out of its regular budget. In other words, the net proceeds from the sale of one seizure cannot presently be used to offset the unrecouped costs of another seizure. The new fund would allow the agency to balance all proceeds against all expenses, with proceeds in excess of costs, if any, on each forfeiture going into the fund and losses, if any, on individual forfeitures being covered in the fund. Net proceeds in excess of $10 million would be transferred to the general fund of the Treasury at the end of each fiscal year and the total proceeds being so transferred when the fund expires on September 30, 1987.

The establishment of the special account would also encourage more efficient maintenance, storage, and inventory procedures than are feasible under current requirements, including such measures as possible national inventory and property maintenance control through computerization.

The establishment of the fund would also give greater protection to innocent lienholders and would allow the agency to pay the costs of maintenance of the properties on a regular basis without regard to the sale or transfer date of the specific property and without the need of contracting for services on a contingency basis. The net effect would be to relieve the agency of the financial restrictions and complications of having to deal with each and every seizure on a separate basis, but would maintain the accountability on an over-all basis.

Section 210

Section 210 amends sections 614 and 615 of the Tariff Act to make explicit reference to "aircraft."

Section 211

Section 211 inserts a new section 616 in the Tariff Act permitting the Secretary of the Treasury to turn over property seized by Customs to State and local law enforcement agencies to permit those agencies in States with forfeiture laws to institute State forfeiture proceedings when appropriate or transfer property already forfeited to any State and local law enforcement agencies which participated directly in the seizure of the property. Such a transfer occurs under such terms as the Secretary may determine, thus allowing for the pass on of forfeiture costs to the States, if appropriate. In this situation, the Federal Government would cease to be liable once the property was turned over to the State agency.

Section 212

Section 212 amends section 619 of the Tariff Act to raise the maximum level of compensation which can be paid to informers from $50,000 to $250,000. However, the current requirement that limits the payment to 25 percent of the net proceeds recovered would be retained. Many informants take great risks in reporting violations for Federal law and the current limit of $50,000 has not been changed since 1922.

Section 213

Section 213 amends section 618 of the Tariff Act to make explicit reference to "aircraft."

Section 214

Section 214 adds a new section 589 to the Tariff Act to grant additional arrest authority to Customs officers. Under existing law, a Customs officer has authority to make warrantless arrests for violations of the narcotic drug and marijuana laws under section 7607 of the Internal Revenue Code, for violations of the navigation laws if committed in the officer's presence, and for violations of revenue laws under 19 U.S.C. 1581. In addition, miscellaneous conservation, fisheries, and pollution laws also confer arrest authority on Customs officers in various situations (16 U.S.C. 3405, 16 U.S.C. 772d, 916g, 959(b), and 33 U.S.C. 413).

Currently, the court decisions require Customs officers making arrests for export violations, assaults on Customs officers, and other Federal felony violations to rely on the various State laws conferring arrest authority on private persons ("citizen's arrest"), unless State law confers peace officer status on them. This reliance on 50 different State laws is both confusing and inconsistent with the authority conferred upon other Federal officers.

Customs officers are now engaged in Federal enforcement programs where such limited authority has proven to be clearly inadequate and potentially compromises and hinders the Customs Service's present role in the efficient enforcement of such Federal programs.

The new section 589 would incorporate present authority contained in section 7607 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 for Customs officers to carry firearms, execute and serve search and arrest warrants, and serve subpoenas and would, in addition, authorize an officer of the Customs Service to make arrests without a warrant for any offense against the United States committed in the officer's presence, or outside the officer's presence if the officer has reasonable grounds to believe that the person to be arrested has committed, or is committing, a felony.

It is not the Committee's intention that the term "reasonable grounds to believe" as used in this section would create a new standard for warrantless arrests. Rather, it should be interpreted in a manner which is consistent with the term's established meaning in case law with respect to arrest authority of other Federal law enforcement officials.

Enactment of section 214 would also make it clear that Customs officers may serve search and arrest warrants for any Federal offense including drug offenses. This would eliminate the problem raised in U.S. v. Harrington, 520 F. Supp. 93 (1981), which, although reversed on appeal, questioned Customs authority to serve search warrants in joint DEA-Customs investigations away from the border.

This section would also authorize Customs officers to perform any other law enforcement duties that the Secretary of the Treasury designates. This provision would codify present practice under 31 U.S.C. 321 and permit maximum utilization of Customs personnel in other Treasury activities, such as protective details and inspector general investigations.

By approving the provisions establishing law enforcement authority for the U.S. Customs Service, the Committee does not intend to expand or diminish Customs service jurisdiction over criminal offenses. Neither should these provisions be construed as an attempt to alter the terms of Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1973, Executive Order 11727, "Establishing a Drug Enforcement Administration in the Department of Justice," which order defines the functions, jurisdiction, and authority of the Drug Enforcement Administration as the principal Federal narcotics enforcement agency. Rather, this section of the bill is an effort to clarify and codify existing Customs Service authority and is supported by the Department of Justice as well as the Department of the Treasury.

VOTE OF COMMITTEE IN REPORTING THE BILL

In compliance with clause 2(1)(2)(B) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the following statement is made relative to the vote of the Committee in reporting the bill. H.R. 4901 was by voice vote ordered favorably reported by the Committee with amendments.

OVERSIGHT FINDINGS

Pursuant to clause 2(1)(3)(A) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee makes the following findings:

The Committee, based on the oversight activity of the Subcommittee on Trade, has concluded that changes in the organization of the U.S. Customs Service or in the laws administered by it, other than those included in the legislation, are not necessary at this time.

In regard to clause 2(1)(3)(D) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, no oversight findings or recommendations have been submitted to the Committee by the Committee on Government Operations with respect to the subject matter contained in the bill.

BUDGETARY AUTHORITY AND COST ESTIMATES, INCLUDING ESTIMATES OF THE CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE

In compliance with clause 7(a) of rule XIII and with clause 2(1)(3)(B) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee states that H.R. 4901 does not provide new budget authority or any new or increased tax expenditures.

In compliance with clause 7(a) of rule XIII and with clauses 2(1)(3) (B) and (C) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee provides below information furnished by the Congressional Budget Office on H.R. 4901 and required to be included herein.

U.S. CONGRESS,
CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE,
Washington, D.C., August 7, 1984.

HON. DAN ROSTENKOWSKI,
Chairman, Committee on Ways and Means, House of Representatives, Longworth House Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: The Congressional Budget Office has reviewed H.R. 4901, the Comprehensive Drug Penalty Act of 1984, as ordered reported by the House Committee on Ways and Means, August 1, 1984. We estimate that the federal government will realize a small savings, and the state and local governments will incur no additional costs as a result of the enactment of this bill.

H.R. 4901 changes certain forfeiture provisions and increases penalties for controlled substances offenses. The bill provides that any building, land, aircraft, vehicle, or other property used for the cultivation, storage, export, or import of drugs may be subject to forfeit. The bill provides for a Department of Justice Forfeiture Fund (DJFF) and a Customs Forfeiture Fund (CFF), to be set up as two separate accounts within the Treasury. Any proceeds remaining from the sale of forfeited property after the payment of expenses will be deposited into the funds. Expenditures from these funds shall be subject to appropriation action. The two funds are established from the enactment date through the end of fiscal year 1987.

The bill authorizes the appropriation of a maximum of $10 million from each fund each year for the payment of rewards for information, the purchase of evidence, and the redesign of forfeited vehicles for law enforcement functions. The bill also authorizes appropriations of such sums as are necessary from the funds for certain other purposes related to forfeitures. At the end of the fiscal years 1984, 1985, and 1986, any amount in the fund in excess of $10 million will be deposited in the general fund of the Treasury. Under current law, the proceeds from the sale of forfeited property can only be used to pay any expenses associated with that property. The funds will allow the proceeds remaining from the sale of forfeited property to be used to pay any expenses for the sale of other forfeited property.

The bill also provides for substantial increases in the penalties that may be imposed for controlled substances offenses, in the value of merchandise that may be seized by customs officers without judicial forfeiture proceedings, in the amount of the bond posted to contest a forfeiture, and in the amount that may be paid as a reward for information or for the purchase of evidence.

While H.R. 4901 specifically authorizes appropriations totaling $20 million annually from the two new funds, the bill is likely to result in no significant additional costs to the government and may produce some savings. The bill would affect the number of forfeitures, the receipts from the sale of forfeited property, and the expenses associated with each forfeiture.

The number of forfeitures and resulting receipts should increase for two main reasons. First, the bill allows more property to be forfeited administratively rather than judicially. Administrative forfeitures take about 2-3 months, while judicial forfeitures may take as long as 24 months. Second, the increase in the maximum amount that may be paid for information is expected to elicit more information and make possible more forfeitures. Sales receipts may therefore be higher, because more forfeitures will be accomplished and because the administrative forfeiture procedures would allow the seized property less time to depreciate, resulting in higher sale value.

The expenses associated with forfeitures may be lower than under current law because of the increase in administrative forfeitures. The shorter time necessary for these forfeitures will result in lower costs for storage, security, and maintenance of seized property.

While the higher payments for information may offset some of these savings, the savings are expected to exceed the increases in payments. There is, however, no clear basis for accurately estimating the magnitude of these increases and decreases.

We also expect that the federal government would receive increased revenues from the higher penalties authorized by the bill. In most instances, maximum fines have been increased tenfold. There is no clear basis for projecting the number or amounts of such fines.

The bill provides that the Secretary of the Treasury may discontinue forfeiture proceedings or turn over seized property to state and local law enforcement agencies to allow those agencies to implement state forfeiture proceedings. These transfers will be at the discretion of the Secretary, and no net cost to state and local governments is expected to occur.

If you wish further details on this estimate, we will be pleased to provide them.

Sincerely,

RUDOLPH G. PENNER, Director.

INFLATIONARY IMPACT STATEMENT

With respect to clause 2(1)(4) of rule XI of the Rules of the House of Representatives, the Committee states that H.R. 4901 as amended would not have any inflationary impact on prices and costs in the operation of the general economy.

ALTERNATIVE FINE

SEC. 413. In lieu of a fine otherwise authorized by this part, a defendant who derives profits or other proceeds from an offense may be fined not more than twice the gross profits or other proceeds.

GENERAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO FINES

SEC. 414. (a) In determining whether to impose a fine under this part, and the amount, time, and method of payment of a fine, the court shall—

- (1) give primary consideration to the need to deprive the defendant of profits or other proceeds from the offense;
- (2) consider the defendant's income, earning capacity, and financial resources;
- (3) consider the burden that the fine will impose on the defendant and on any person who is legally or financially dependent on the defendant; and
- (4) consider any other pertinent equitable factor.

(b) As a condition of a fine, the court may require that payment be made in installments or within any period that is not longer than the maximum applicable term of probation or imprisonment, whichever is longer. If not otherwise required by such a condition, payment of a fine shall be due immediately.

(c) If a fine is imposed on an organization, it is the duty of each individual authorized to make disbursements for the organization to pay the fine from assets of the organization.

(d)(1) A defendant who has paid part of a fine, may petition the court for extension of the time for payment, modification of the method of payment, or remission of all or part of the unpaid portion.

(2) The court may enter an appropriate order under this subsection, if it finds that—

- (A) the circumstances that warranted the fine in the amount imposed, or payment by the time or method specified, no longer exist; or
- (B) it is otherwise unjust to require payment of the fine in the amount imposed or by the time or method specified.

CRIMINAL FORFEITURE

SEC. 415. (a) If an indictment or information alleges that property is subject to forfeiture under this section, the United States may request an order for seizure of such property in the same manner as provided for a search warrant. The court shall order seizure if there is probable cause to believe that—

- (1) the property is subject to forfeiture; and
- (2) an order restraining transfer of the property is not sufficient to ensure availability of the property for forfeiture.

(b) Any person who is convicted of a felony under this title or title III shall forfeit to the United States such person's interest in—

- (1) any property constituting or derived from gross profits or other proceeds obtained from the offense;
- (2) any property used, or intended to be used, to commit the offense; and

(3) in the case of a conviction under section 408 of this title, in addition to the property described in paragraphs (1) and (2), such person's interest in, claim against, or property or contractual right of any kind affording a source of control over, the continuing criminal enterprise.

(c) The court shall order forfeiture of property referred to in subsection (b) if the trier of fact determines beyond a reasonable doubt that such property is subject to forfeiture.

(d) The United States shall, to the maximum extent practicable, provide notice of the provisions of subsections (e), (f), and (g) to any person with an alleged interest in property forfeited under subsection (c) and shall, in the manner prescribed by the Attorney General, provide public notice of the forfeiture.

(e)(1) Not later than 60 days after the date of an order under subsection (c) any person with an alleged interest in the property may petition the Attorney General for remission or mitigation of the forfeiture.

(2) Not later than 90 days after the filing of a petition under paragraph (1), the Attorney General shall make a written determination with respect to the petition. Except as provided in subsection (f), the property shall be disposed of pursuant to such determination, which shall not be subject to review.

(3) A period specified in this subsection may be extended by the court for good cause shown.

(f)(1) Any person (other than a defendant convicted of the offense on which the forfeiture is based) may petition the court for remission or mitigation of the forfeiture. A petition under this subsection shall be filed not later than 60 days after the date of the order under subsection (c), or, if a petition is filed under subsection (e), not later than 60 days after the date of the determination of the Attorney General.

(2) The court shall grant appropriate relief if, after a hearing, the petitioner establishes by a preponderance of the evidence that—

(A) at the time of the offense the petitioner had an interest in the property that was separate from or superior to the interest of the defendant; or

(B) in the case of an interest acquired for value after the offense, when acquiring the interest the petitioner did not know or have reason to know of the offense or of any order restraining transfer of the property.

(g) A petition to the Attorney General or the court under this section shall be verified and shall set forth the relief sought, the nature and extent of the petitioner's interest in the property, the time and circumstances of the petitioner's acquisition of interest, and any additional facts and circumstances supporting remission or mitigation.

(h)(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), the customs laws relating to disposition of seized or forfeited property shall apply to property under this section, to the extent that such laws are not inconsistent with this section.

(2) The duties of the Secretary of the Treasury with respect to dispositions of property under the customs laws shall be performed under paragraph (1) by the Attorney General, except to the extent that such duties arise from forfeitures effected under the customs laws.

(i) In any disposition of property under this section, a convicted person shall not be permitted to acquire property forfeited by such person.

(j) In any action brought by the United States under this section, the district courts of the United States shall have jurisdiction to enter such restraining orders or prohibitions, or to take such other actions, including, but not limited to, the acceptance of satisfactory performance bonds, in connection with any property or other interest subject to forfeiture under this section, as it shall deem proper.

(k)(1) In addition to any order authorized by subsection (j), the court may, before the filing of an indictment or information, enter an order restraining the transfer of property that is or may be subject to forfeiture.

(2) An order shall be entered under this subsection if the court determines that—

(A) there is a substantial probability that the United States will prevail on the issue of forfeiture;

(B) there is a substantial probability that failure to enter the order will result in unavailability of the property for forfeiture; and

(C) the need to assure availability of the property outweighs the hardship on any person against whom the order is to be entered.

(3)(A) Except as provided in subparagraph (B), an order under this subsection shall be entered only after notice to persons appearing to have an interest in the property and opportunity for a hearing.

(B) A temporary order under this subsection may be entered upon application of the United States, without notice or opportunity for a hearing, if an information or indictment has not been filed and the United States demonstrates that provision of notice will jeopardize the availability of the property for forfeiture. Such a temporary order shall expire not more than 10 days after the date on which it is entered, except that the court may extend the effective period of the order for not more than 10 days for good cause shown and for a longer period with the consent of each person affected by the order.

(l) There may be a rebuttable presumption at trial that any property of a person convicted of a felony under this title or title III is subject to forfeiture under this section if the United States establishes by a preponderance of the evidence that—

(1) such property was acquired by such person during the offense or within a reasonable time after the offense; and

(2) there was no likely source for such property other than the offense.

(7) If the offense involved is a felony, all land and buildings used, or intended for use, for holding or storage of property described in paragraph (1) or (2) or for cultivation of any plant that is such property, except that no land or building shall be forfeited under this paragraph, to the extent of the interest of an owner, by reason of any act or omission established by that owner to have been committed or omitted without the knowledge or consent of that owner.

The court may order forfeiture of less than the whole of any land or building under paragraph (7) if the owner establishes that forfeiture of the whole would be grossly disproportionate to the severity of the offense or to the extent of the use or intended use. If land under paragraph (7) is used or intended to be used for cultivation, the court shall order forfeiture of only the portion of the tract so used or intended to be used, and if the cultivation is dispersed over less than all of the tract, the court may order forfeiture of a portion of the tract equal to the areas used or intended to be used for cultivation.

(2) In addition to the venue under section 1395 of title 28, United States Code, or any other provision of law, in the case of property of a defendant charged with a violation that is the basis for forfeiture under this section, a proceeding for forfeiture may be brought in the judicial district in which the defendant is found or in which the prosecution is brought.

- (1) retain the property for official use;
- (2) sell any forfeited property which is not required to be destroyed by law and which is not harmful to the public;
- (3) require that the General Services Administration take custody of the property and remove it for disposition in accordance with law; or
- (4) forward it to the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs for disposition (including delivery for medical or scientific use to any Federal or State agency under regulations of the Attorney General).

The proceeds from any sale under paragraph (2) and any moneys forfeited under this title shall be used to pay all proper expenses of the proceedings for forfeiture and sale including expenses of seizure, maintenance of custody, advertising, and court costs. [The] Except as provided in subsection (h) of this section, the Attorney General shall forward to the Treasurer of the United States for deposit in the general fund of the United States Treasury any amounts of such moneys and proceeds remaining after payment of such expenses.
